

In the past people used to wear their traditional clothes depending on their culture. Nowadays the trend is changing and people wear different clothes. Is it a positive or negative development? How does it affect certain societies and people's behavior?

There have always been many things illustrating notions, beliefs and traditions of a society like flags and signs, architecture of the buildings, dresses and simply put their cultures through history. However, from my perspective, the most obvious and bolded one is wear. Therefore, alteration in this regard which is not a new phenomenon must be assessed whether it has got merits or demerits.

Like abundant things which have been changed through the history of human's lives, the way that individuals prefer to wear their clothes has modified too either. On the one hand, some maintain that by alteration of clothing as a symbol of their culture people would deviate from the way of their ancestors and might lose their nobility. Moreover, they are of the opinion that keeping old fashion clothing as a part of culture is vitally important.

On the other hand, a widely held belief is believe that not only does this change have has no disadvantages, but also has advantages like making people look like more in shape and simple and would spread the sense of unity among them. Furthermore, it is improving the sense of freedom, self-confidence and encouraging for opening new horizons for themselves.

To put it in a nut shell, I strongly believe that we have to accept these kinds of alterations from its positive aspects and be aware not to forget the remaining remained values of our ancestors. On balance, I tend to consider that every change could have its virtues and vices. Hence, it is all about us that how to use them to pave the way of success.
