

Nowadays, young people know less about traditions and culture than in the past. What are the reasons for it? What can be done to improve this situation?

Along with the ~~so~~ fast growing technology, the lifestyle of people has changed. Besides, ~~their ambitions and demand~~ ~~the ambitious and demanded of them~~ have altered as well and they are not keen on traditions and cultures in comparison with the past. The question is what ~~are~~ the causes are for this trend? Moreover, I will clarify the solution to ~~of~~ this matter.

Firstly, our fast-paced lifestyle shapes the character and attitude of the people. They are forced to pay attention to the routine and earning money. In addition, there is no balance between their personal ~~life~~ and professional life and they do not have enough time to ~~spend for spending~~ on other issues such as the history and culture of their country. Secondly, religion ~~creates makes the a~~ huge gap between the traditions and the young people. Religion is in contrast with traditions and old-fashioned culture. For example, traditional music and dancing are forbidden in Islam. Thirdly, government disregards the role of traditions and culture among youth. For instance, for hiring and having an important position in some organizations and firms, being knowledgeable about cultures is not essential.

However, there is a significant way to persuade young people to ~~find found~~ out more about the previous centuries and also the culture of their own country. Modifying the lifestyle and changing some habits and manners regarding this issue are all dependent on the government. Initially, establishing some organizations for propaganda and advertising the traditions and culture should be the first priority of each country. After that ~~setting up-~~ ~~up the~~ billboards and using celebrities could draw the attention of youth. Finally, holding some training courses in the universities and companies ~~is are~~ effective and showing some rituals and ceremonies through some individual campaigns.

To put in a nutshell, there is no doubt that the new generation is far from their cultures due to the lack of attention of government. But it is not a hard job to overcome this problem and it is the a duty of the government to plan for the future of the youth to realize better the their traditions of their countries.
