

University should accept equal number of male and female students in every subject.

To what extent n.m@gmail.com do you agree or disagree?

There is an old cliché: "give me an educated mother and I will give you an educated nation". This proverb alone shows a significance of education for women because ~~since~~ during the time when that ~~children are~~ growing up, mother is the person that their kids are emotionally attached to her more than their father. In addition, they help their kids with their ~~about~~ study, so ~~so~~ the importance of the mother's education in higher levels s gets priority considering this single issue.

Throughout the history women and men have worked hand in by hand to make a better world. Whatever the current world is, it has been made by males and females not by a specific gender. Moreover, they both have contributed to the growth of the world. As university education is important for the full flourishing bloom of one person's merits skill and knowledge, so ~~an the~~ equal opportunity for male and female students has to be/must be created arise. In this situation women and men work side by side as friends not as competitors.

The history suggest that usually men are dominant in number in science, art, engineering, creativity and business sections, but we cannot deny the contribution of Mother Teresa and Marry Currie who have has devoted their life for betterment of the world. May be if the acceptance in university is arranged regardless of gender male student go ahead in education but universitiesy should accept an equal number of males and females because if fewer women hold an importantce sector in the country and being in a backward eventually they feel deprived and this will lead to competinge with men. In this circumstance nothing good no goods can happenbe done.

In conclusion, it is important to reduce gender discrimination, because it is quite related to women's empowerment. So I strongly support the idea that the same number of students in both sexes should get admitted in university.
