

In many parts of the world there is continuous coverage of sport on television. Some people believe this discourages the young from taking part in any sport themselves. Discuss this view and give your own opinion.

Today television's daily schedule consists of a remarkable proportion of sport programs, whereas there are many arguments argues about this plan of entertaining media which is questioning the improving effect of such kind of programs on people's eagerness in participating in sport activities.

There are many critics who claim that the extravagant amount of sport reports and abundance of sport activities covering channels have nailed people to on their couches coaches and there is no will in their body and soul to move the least even an eyelash. They assert that watching sport media magazines has have been made the usual habit of ordinary people and there is are not any effort for physical activities among them.

On the other hand, proponents of athletic programs respond that these kinds s of media could have an encouraging effect on people who are watching to rise and shine such as those athletes on TV screen. They say the enthusiasm of being famous and appearing on the screen of magic box and somehow their envy which lives inside their minds might persuade them to stand up and try to be like those heroes.

From my point of view, although the idea of critics of overseeing binge watching of sport programs in television daily schedule is worshipful sensible, the view point of proponents is more attractive. I believe there is a must for officials/ television planners to include athletic episodes as well as entertaining and advertising sections in their every day time table, and there must be some programs to manipulate lazy TV maniacs by their wish of being famous or even their jealousy to rise up and move even though they might never reach such steps as heroes on the screen.

In conclusion, although having enormous sport reports or programs could diversely affect audiences and keep them in their houses, reducing those programs is equal to increasing worthless advertising and entertaining episodes, and this will not result in encouraging people to have physical activities.
