

Giving international aid to poor countries. Agree or disagree

Every day either a turbulence in economic measures or unfortunate incidents such as natural disasters and war may put some countries in a serious need. The other said causes are likely to be political corruption or ~~week-weak~~ weak economic infrastructures. However, apart from many different reasons we may include as a major contributor to this issue outcomes are always the same: severe and ~~invasive-pervasive~~ pervasive poverty for people in some countries. Therefore, to overcome the problem some people opt for dedicating international aid to relieve poverty whilst the others oppose such as these actions.

~~In-on~~ In the one hand, those who believe in international aid usually maintain that without these grants ~~much-many~~ many more people will suffer the consequences of poverty. Hence, as a human being this is our responsibility to help these poor countries to provide their people with their primary needs such as food, health services or a place for settlement. Otherwise there is a serious flaw in our moral codes as a human. Moreover, neglecting to support poor countries may create ~~much-many~~ many more issues such as illegal migrations.

On the other hand, those who are of the opinion that international aid ~~has have~~ has disadvantages too usually mention that not only does assisting broke countries with money seem like a short-term solution to ~~a~~ a quite a complex issue, but also it may exacerbate the political corruption that often poor countries are struggling with. ~~In~~ In other words since in many cases tracing ~~this these~~ this aid to ensure all the target group of individuals receive proper portion of helps are near impossible, the given helps may end up wasting to satisfy a corrupted political figure's ~~ambition ambitus~~ ambition to remain in the power.

I personally think financial supports for those of poor country is crucial yet I also back the idea that clearly states more target-oriented and less unorganized and untraceable aid. Thus I am sure that if we devise a comprehensive plan we will be able to put our focus more on finding the ways to make ~~all this these~~ all this aid more effective and create permanent positive impacts ~~financially. in-terms-of-financial-status~~ financially. For instance, we can invest more ~~on-in~~ on education and public awareness to empower people in poor countries to acquire more control on their own destiny and throughout social and political changes pave their ways toward a less fragile economy, then it would be much easier to build up a strong one economy.

However, it is particularly one of every wealthy ~~countries' country's~~ country's international duties to strive enough to eliminate poverty all around the world ~~regardless of apart from~~ regardless of how difficult it will be ~~because~~ because we are all human and we share ~~a-the~~ a the same fate. Consequently, a problem in a part of our world sooner or later echoes through the other parts.
