

Some people believe that children should be allowed to stay at home and play until they are six or seven years old. Others believe that it is important for young children to go to school as soon as possible.

What do you think are the advantages of attending school from a young age?

Attending school quite soon ~~to school~~ is totally beneficial for children. They learn how they can communicate with other people and learn how they can manage their behavior/treatments in different situations.

In every society, there are many persons growing up in various conditions, so they both act and talk in different ways. Nowadays, in this the colorful tiny global village, the The internet, social medias and smart phones come up through to help people to get close together. However, in this environment understanding people is greatly important. To my mind, misunderstanding is the major reason for rows (and quarrels). Schools can teach respectful and right manners to children for facing contrastive ideas from an early age.

On the other hand, some people believe children must both stay ~~and spend~~ at home and spend time with their parents until they grow up to about seven. But they fail to care about the a-fact that parents are members of this tiny village too. Although we always find some teenagers talking about their parents who neither understand ~~them~~ nor believe in them, everybody knows that no one believes in children as their parents. This is the very misunderstanding that I pointed out. A close sense of intimacy between parents and children is the outcome of the magnificent comprehension.

In conclusion, I believe today with so many financial problems that parents have, schools play the main role in children's life. The children that someday play main roles in our society like teachers, lawyers lawers and presidents. Without communication knowledge, people always become involved in an arguments, and ~~They cannot will be~~ unable to clear up misapprehension too either.
