

Using a computer everyday can have more negative than positive effects on children, do you agree or disagree?

In the world of computer-literate communications, reducing the age of computer usage to a very early age is undeniable, but, this fact can also have has some harmful effects on children's life. In my opinion, this hurry in misusing technology not only can destroy normal life but also can threaten the human health.

Considering the augmentation of computer roles in human life, many of previous/yesterday real game, which had a lot of physical mobility supersede by a stagnant computer game, this revolution can cause much many body pain in long-term, like back ache or neck arthritis.

In addition, using a computer can lead to serious addiction. People don't recognize time passing when they drown deep into a computer games or net surfing, and after a while this can give rise to their seclusion. In other words, they fall into the habit of to spending their time without any real partner.

In conclusion, in nowadays today's world, although sooner or later people must be involved in using computer technology, but for striking a balance and preventing any physical and psychological problems, it is better to postpone it at least to academic life and let the childhood fun/interesting/exciting ~~passionate~~ activities be done without any deviation.