

It is generally believed that some people are born with certain talents, for instance sport or music, and others are not. However, it is sometimes claimed that any child can be taught to become a good sports person or musician.

Discuss both these views and give your own opinion.

I think that understanding one's natural talent is the most important subject in everyone's life. Everyone can find their ways by with knowing their true talent. The way that can make them rich, successful, famous and most more important of allothers, satisfaction.

Some people believe it doesn't matter who you are and which ability you have, it's just on you to become a successful person or not. The main subject is both your both training and practice. Therefore, However, everyone can become a star with hard work ~~hardworking~~. According to this idea if someone who was born ~~ed~~ with paraplegia cannot win a running competition it's just his fault and he doesn't have enough training. Furthermore, some statistics show about 80 percent of students who study in gifted students and talented schools are diligent and just 20 percent of them have an especial ability and a high IQ. The low IQ neither stops nor discourages ~~disappoint~~ them from ~~for~~ achieving their goals.

On the other hand, there are some people thinking although perseverance ~~hardworking~~ is important, the color of the ability of the talented people is totally different with others. In spite of this, everyone will be able to become an outstanding soccer player with training and practice but won't be able to become Lionel Messi. There are many singers, musicians and actors around the world, but some of the talented ones of them are by far more extremely brilliant. It's not about doing something, certainly it's about qualities of their performances with magical attractions.

In conclusion, From where I stand, natural talent is not enough to make someone successful and satisfied ~~action~~ and not having natural talent doesn't block someone from ~~to~~ reaching their ~~his~~ goals either. Through ~~With~~ smart working and hard working we will be able to become a star.