

Farnaz

Every year thousands of student go overseas to study. Although many benefit from experience, others go home disappointed. What are the benefits and drawbacks of studying in another country?

Annually, there are thousands of students deciding to continue their education in a foreign country. Whether it is a correct decision or not requires deliberating its strengths and weaknesses. In this essay I will attempt to elaborate on the advantages and disadvantages of this issue.

First and foremost, a highly favorable side to go abroad to study is for sure acquiring brilliant opportunities. Most of the students are heading for ~~country's~~ countries which provide higher-level universities and a better social life ~~in~~ compared to their ~~homeland~~ home-land. In this case, they not only obtain highly valid educational qualifications, but also their job prospective may be granted. Furthermore, by experiencing a different life-style and abroad difficulties they become independent, their dignity is raised ~~it raises their dignity~~ and their horizons toward the world ~~it will be broadened their horizon toward the world~~.

In the second place, one negative facet of such a practice would be language and communicating problems. Learning and speaking a new language fluently and adapting ~~to~~ with the destination country's culture need time, also dealing with the loneliness and being far from family and friends add extra difficulties to this issue. There are too many students who cannot communicate easily and make friends because of the poor language and consequently return home for escaping from loneliness.

To sum up, like any other current trends, studying abroad has its own merits and demerits. taking a logical decision to whether ~~on~~ going or staying requires knowing your own abilities, characteristics and considering all the positive and negative outcomes simultaneously.