Some people think that universities should provide graduates with the knowledge and skills needed in the workplace .others think that the true function of a university should be to give access to knowledge for its own sake. regardless of whether the course is useful to an employer.

Generally speaking the literacy and knowledge play a main role in our future such that one could have this chance to be a winner in the tough competitions especially in the workplace. Many people believe that the education in university must be related to one's 's future occupation. However, the others say that the nature of knowledge must be significant regardless of what kind of relationship there is between the workplace and education. What we will be addressing in this essay is the discussion about the influence of educational based concentration and preparation of jobseekers before landing/finding/getting/obtaining a related job on their effectiveness which as far as the writer's concerned there is a direct bearing between them and there is going to be clarified as below.

It's an inevitable fact that when there is spoken the more concentrated one is, the more effective and successful one he/she is in the workplace. regarding this matter the role of suitable and needed prerequisites such as related former education are highlighted which lead jobseekers to claim for a the better position such as manag management ing in white color jobs in high level vocational classes due to direct relationship between mentally preparation and concentration which is affected by the level of linked education while the majority of people have lots of problems owing to lack of preparation before getting a job.

Secondly, when one takes the job related to one's course in the university it is not only beneficial for employers to cut the expenses of education which is required during the job, but also it is really helpful for employees regarding passing taking practical courses which makes them knowledgeable know-how enough to be successful in their future job.

Finally, psychologically speaking people could find their self-belief and release their mind in the stressful ambience of job derived from tough competition regardless of how long their courses were just by consideration of this feeling they passed related course so they have stronger CV to offer to their employers though, admittedly, the more competent and qualified in passing a course one is, the more dexterous one he/she is during one's their job.

To sum up, it's crystal clear when it is the positive role of mental and practical preparation is addressed the positive role of mentally and practically preparation for landing arelated job which could be derived however educated and skilled one is in advance which shows the vital role of the related education for paving the way of getting suitable job.

The more prepared and concentrated you are, the better paved the way for progress.

v@hid t@vazoei