

Page 102 of Saadaat Jozveh:

It is generally believed that some people are born with certain talents, for instance for sport or music, and others are not. However, it is sometimes claimed that any child can be taught to become a good sports person or musician.

Discuss both these views and give your own opinion.

It is absolutely a marvelous phenomenon that God ~~god~~ has given us highly distinctive aptitudes from the first day we were born. As a result, our first major duty during life is to get acquainted with our unique abilities and then to put all our efforts into enriching our capabilities by being ~~enough~~ perseverant enough.

A majority of people maintain/hold/argue ~~have faith in~~ that exceptional talents promotes success and welfare in advance. For instance, “nowadays teenage singers who ~~are~~ are having enormous amounts of income can be found almost everywhere, moreover, they live their lives in an exotic atmosphere of having tremendous numbers of fans” which is what these people might say. Another belief they have may be, not only did most of them have no tutors to help them attain this point, but also they have genuine talents which leads them to be other artists’ trainers as well.

On the contrary, there are those who ~~are~~ are having reservations about the idea of “being brilliant without being taught”. They believe the more a person tries, the more he or she acquires. To put it simply into simple words, is it possible for a hardworking student to fail all the exams? Subsequently, people’s achievements are always being denoted by both their persistence and knowledge simultaneously by this group.

To me, we were all born with numerous exclusive gifts undoubtedly which undoubtedly makes us unique. While having all kinds of different tastes, we should support each other in order to prevail over difficulties. By the same token, all the human beings should try to do their best in order to find their fields of interest. Not all of us are capable of doing this, nevertheless.

You are a student in a college and have not yet completed an important assignment for your course.

You are writing a letter to your tutor.

- Apologise for the delay
- Explain why it is late
- Request an extension

Dear Professor Akbar Akbarzadeh,

Please accept my sincere apologies for not doing my Etabs project. I am extremely sorry for not meeting the deadline you set and I am aware ~~of~~ that this delay will cause you a lot of inconvenience.

Unfortunately, I had a domestic problem to deal with. My father had a heart attack last week and he is currently recovering at home and I need to look after him.

In view of this, I would be very grateful if you could give me another week to have this crucial project completed. I need this time so that I can proofread my project and check my references. I also need to write my conclusion but as I have already managed to prepare the outline of the summary it should not be time-consuming.

Once again, I am truly sorry about this extremely unfortunate delay. I am the one to blame. But it was not intentional at all.

Yours faithfully,

Saeed Shokravi