

Nowadays many people work from home. Discuss the advantages and disadvantages of this situation in particular and of technologically advanced society in general.

Nowadays we are benefiting from so many advantages of recent advancement in is science and technology. Researches have has opened new horizons to people to live a better and easier life. Telecommunications, and to be more precise IT, is one of the majors in which we had a dramatic explosion of advancement. Teleworking is one of the new ways of working in which employees are not obligeds to work at a specific place, so then they can freely work from any place around the globe without any limitation. In this essay I will attempt to elaborate on my viewpoints and explain my opinion with some relevant examples.

Firstly, as an environmentalist I think this is an effective proven way to reduce pollution in big cities such as Tehran, New York and Shanghai which are suffering from /choking with air pollution. There is no cast of doubt on the fact that commuting of employees to their work place demands a high volume of fossil fuel, and it is clear that car emissions of such a large number of vehicles comprises a big portion of air pollution in big cities. On one hand, we have a steeply positive trend of immigration of the work force to big cities, and on the other hand a gentle rate in construction of infrastructure of transportation such as new roads, bridges and means of travel inside cities in general, so then we can conclude that the only proven way to control air pollution in such cities is teleworking.

Moreover, this way of working can support mothers who have to leave their job due to pregnancy, and other motherhood duties. In most parts of the world mothers can enjoy an official 90-days leave of absence from their work during their pregnancy, and after giving birth to of their child, but the true story is that in most cases their position will be occupied by a new one, and that is why in women consider pregnancy, equal to losing their jobs. I personally think that by this new method of working, mothers can work without the stress of losing their careers.

Finally, remote working can lead to more production and wealth by cutting some costs such as costs of the building, power and water bills, and the commodities required for an office, in addition to this, longer hours of working can definitely bring about more income, and hopefully this additional income leads into more jobs and lower crime rates ~~less-crimes~~.

Taking everything into consideration, I would say that teleworking/telecommute is a new way of working, and because its known drawbacks are less than the benefits, I strongly suggest it to people who can try it. Moreover, ~~more-over~~ as I mentioned above ~~it~~ not only is it beneficial for individuals, but also it has some benefits for the whole society.
