

Some people think that universities should provide graduates with the knowledge and skills needed in the workplace. Others think that the true function of a university should be to give access to knowledge for its own sake, regardless of whether the course is useful to employer.

What, in your opinion, should be the main function of university?

One of the university's functions is to provide/providing a situation where that people especially that youth could get/obtain science regardless of the use/applicability of it. But nowadays getting a job is an important issue to all families, thus people who are interested in continuing their education ~~s in or~~ applicable courses should have access to them.

Inherently, the educated society is intended to provide people to be respectable individuals/ the educated societies are intending to stimulate their individuals to be respectful. Moreover, gaining knowledge enhances interpersonal relationships. besides, society is being a suitable place for living. living in this kind of atmosphere/ such situation, people are supportive. Not only do they not show a logical appearance, but also they do not seem sensible. In other words, they do not show either unusual/ strange or unexpected reactions in difficult positions. To put it simply, education develops critical thinking skills and provides us with real life experiences.

On the other hand, many believe that they must choose the course which they are going to use/apply for in the future, mostly in their work place, hence they expect governments to attend to this situation. Governments expend ~~curb~~ for university students, as far as this expense is should be reasonable. There are suggestions as to how we can fight this challenge. One of them is that we should limit some courses that society is full of and there is not any work for the educated. The other is that, governments could motivate individuals to improve their job skills rather than mere education. ~~due to nation's satisfaction.~~

Ultimately, I personally believe that I should study the course that I could use in my workplace, otherwise if it is not, I will follow either my dreams or interests. Because/since I believe we have one chance to live in the world, therefore we should fulfil our ambitions. Despite of what I explained above, universities should offer essential knowledge that makes connections to real life.
