

Due to the development and rapid expansion of supermarkets in some countries, many small, local businesses are unable to compete. Some people think that the closure of local businesses will bring about the death of local communities.

To what extent do you agree or disagree.

It is an undeniable issue that advertisements play a vital role in expanding their newly founded companies. Therefore, it is an undeniable fact that people's life styles have changed recently. For instance, most ~~of~~ individuals who follow a hectic life style prefer to buy their needs through modern shopping centers instead of spending huge amounts of time ~~on~~ going to local shops. However, elderly spouses prefer to go to some small shops which are familiar to them and talk to owners or consult with them and then buy their needs.

These modern shopping centers that have been established these days included a variety kinds of items/goods/merchandise/products/things, hence there is a wider range of choices to buy. In addition, they offer some special discounts to some of their goods on sale ~~sell things~~ and it could encourage consumption ~~motivate the member of public to consume~~. The other ~~Other~~ notable issue ~~things~~ to bring up is associated with ~~the power of purchasing power~~ buying. Owners of these shopping places can easily buy enormous amounts/quantities of qualified products because ~~Because~~ they are rich and that might be a major reason to attract consumers based on their guides.

Despite ~~Although~~ the ~~the~~ fore-mentioned possible reasons to make hypermarkets appealing, there are some proponents-opponents who assert that we should not forget the fact in our society that one third of the inhabitants are senior citizens /overaged and have a traditional life. They are fond of buying their things in some small shops near their living places. They claim not only do crowded malls provide some pricy things but also it is not a suitable idea to waste money on some colorful well-packaged products.

On the whole, from my point of view popularity of some shops that are small and just sell ~~sell~~ limited things is on the decline and I, personally, wholeheartedly agree with the given statement.
