

Many governments think that economic progress is their most important goal. Some people, however, think that other types of progress are equally important for a country.

Discuss both these views and give your own opinion.

As everyone knows/obviously economic progress is one of the significant ~~parts~~ aspects of development in each country. Not only do governments make every effort in it, but also they should care about other ~~public areas~~ sectors due to the fact that we need to develop in all aspects.

Governments believe that development in most ~~parts~~ of society is impossible without economic thriving. In other words, generating income ~~have~~ influences ~~sd~~ all countries' infrastructures. Whereas, some ~~public areas~~ parts of state are capital-intensive such as education training and also the more we earn ~~provide income~~, the more we can invest in this area ~~part~~. Hence, economic progress is a must.

On the other hand, people ~~expect~~ tend to ~~the~~ government to think about other types of progress ~~in~~ as much as about economy. People often think that, if governments focus more on the economic sector, they will collaborate/ cooperate with the affluent community. Inasmuch as people who most benefit from them are capitalists and I myself think it is a correct idea, but it is unavoidable.

From my point of view, each country ~~where that~~ economic development is its priority, by the same token it achieves growth in other sectors of development. Governments should pave the way for providing welfare for all the nations and also it leads to feeling satisfaction and also it will result in ~~to~~ collaborating ing with both parts.

In conclusion, starting point of each development is based on economy and also it is incumbent on us to help our politicians. In spite of disagreement with some of those policies. As I ~~aforementioned~~ mentioned above, we do not think about ~~looser the loser or the winner and winner~~ because all of us are beneficiaries of developments.
