

Some people claim that not enough of the waste from homes is recycled . They say that the only way to increase recycling is for governments to make it a legal requirement. To what extent do you think laws are needed to make people recycle more of their waste ?

It has been years that we hear or ~~we~~ read about how important recycling is and how much it can help our environment , but some people believe that not enough of the waste from homes is recycled and governments have to make it a legal requirement . To a certain extent , they are right, but is would the interaction of government would be the best solution ?

Firstly , it is believed that people should be aware of importance of recycling and how effective it could be in terms of saving resources and reducing pollution . This way they would have the will to recycle without any ~~mandatory needed obligation~~ . Media has a significant role ~~on in~~ this issue , people will learn about the advantages of recycling through media and social networks . For instance , short programs can be shown on TV or articles can be published in ~~on~~ newspaper and magazines . In addition , websites and social media are very popular these days , so people can learn about recycling from posts on Facebook , Twitter hashtags or photos on instagram or any other website .

On the other hand , we should not underestimate the role of the government and law in for solving the recycling issue . According to what was mentioned before , some believe that governments should make it a legal requirement for recycling . However , the possibility of this idea should be assessed . Referring to this opinion , waste from homes must be controlled to see ~~whether whether~~ they are ~~separated seperated~~ or not , which is not an easy task to do .

To conclude , environmental issues must be taught to individuals and they should feel responsible themselves . This could be done by increasing awareness and knowledge of people through media and government support .
