

We cannot help everyone In the world that need help, so we should only be concerned with our own communities and countries.

To what extent do you agree or disagree with this statement.

Human beings are created from a unique material and then they ~~were~~ are sent to diverse parts of the world, hence all of us have a similar background. There is a question with regard to making a contribution to others. Some researchers believe that it is better to help others regardless of their living places. For example, whether they live in the same place with us or not and some others assume that we had better just help fellow citizens.

That making a contribution to inhabitants who live in the same country with us is a major cause to increase the quality of our life too is an undeniable fact, hence not only are we helping them to tackle their problems, but also it leads us to have a better living condition. In addition, due to the acceptable idea that we can understand the problems of the members of the public's difficulties much more Effectively ly than abroad citizens abroad, receiving money from others who live in some unknown places is unacceptable.

On the other hand opponents opine that because of technological progress we live in a highly modern tech-time. Besides, the world has become like a global village. what is more, We can collect information regarding people from all over the world easily. The more we realizing the people's difficulties, the more we rush to their aid. ~~beneficial favors to them~~. For instance, if a city was hit by an earthquake, authorities from all over the world would go there and evaluate their situations s or predict their current and future needs and help them in an effective and useful way.

In a nutshell, I, personally, claim that governments s should found an organization to predict people's requirements in some unexpected events without considering their nationalities.
