The older generations tend to have more traditional ideas about how people should live, think and behave. However, some people believe that these ideas are not helpful in preparing younger generations for modern life.

To what extent do you agree or disagree with this view?

The role of senior individuals in young generations' life has sparked a heated debate ~~between~~ among people. Some researchers believe that these old people might be completely effective in society and their outlook ~~at~~ on life is really beneficial to their young relatives as opposed to/as against ~~. As opposed to~~ others who assume that the elderly members of the public think traditionally and could not be respectful to younger people.

Proponents opine that the experienced people have managed a variety ~~kind~~ of challenging situations that might ~~happened~~ happen to young people too, hence they can provide their charges with their approaches easily. In addition, due to the fact that most of the old people are much more patient and reliable ~~to others~~, they can affect individuals in a positive way. For example, students look forward to ~~up~~ their grand parents' advice~~s~~ more than their classmates'.

On the other hand, opponents assert that not only do older people think in an out-of-dated way, but also young inhabitants cannot get along well with them. In other words, they are not familiar with some newly established facilities and ~~can not~~ cannot understand them. Furthermore, ~~more,~~ the senior citizens claim that young people follow some ~~priceless~~ worthless hobbies that are not acceptable to them. For example, they pay a lot of attention to being happy in life which/that might lead~~s~~ aged individuals to look down on ~~at~~ these generations.

To put it in a nutshell, I personally believe that the more consulting with old~~er~~ ~~inhabitants~~ individuals, the better off the less aged are. For instance, we can adapt the grand parents' idea that is traditional ~~with~~ to the new situation and take advantage~~s~~ of ~~from~~ them.