

Waste recycling should be obligatory.

Discuss both these views and give your opinion.

As a matter of fact, due to life style changes we have more waste in comparison with the past. Today everyone knows how important recycling is and how much it can help the environment but many believe that not enough of waste from homes is recycled and governments have to make it a legal requirement. This essay will discuss these arguments before arriving at a logical conclusion.

undeniably, education plays a key role in making to make recycling progress wide-spread better. It is believed that people should be aware of importance of recycling and how effective it could be in terms of saving resources and reducing pollution. This way they would have the will to recycle without any obligation. We, people and governments can teach children through education. Students can learn how important they are important in the recycling process with-by sorting wastes in different types.

On the other hand, we should not underestimate the role of the government and law in solving the recycling issue. According to what was mentioned before, many believe that governments should make recycling a legal requirement. Referring to this opinion, casts-waste from homes must be controlled to see whether they are sorted or not, which is not an easy task to do. However, possibility of this idea should be considered.

Eventually, every individual should be a responsible person about society and the environment by giving importance to recycling. Because if we fail to do waste processing, devastating impacts are irreversible and insurmountable not only environmentally but also economically. thanks to recycling factories and people who helped about collecting waste this industry helps a-lot-to the environment and economy by reusing wastes.

All in all, after investigating these points of view, I strongly believe that governments should consider more about wastes materials through / by/ via using in-way-of education and creating awards for people who pay more attention to this and make this process easier. I expect that in the future individuals respect this subject more.
