

Celebrities make a very good living out of media attention and have chosen to live in the public spotlight. They have no right to complain when they feel the media are intruding on their privacy.

To what extent do you agree or disagree with this opinion?

Being famous is always alluring. Having a fancy life, elegant clothes, expensive fast cars, luxury houses, first class travels and most of all being in the news limelight makes everyone ~~to be~~ inquisitive about celebrities' lives. However, an enormous amount of curiosity can be detrimental to the privacy of a celebrity. When people have chosen to live in this life style, they know how hard and dangerous it might be and also how being in the public spotlight ~~effects~~ affects their lives. Besides, they learn about lack of security and ~~less little~~ or no privacy. In the past few decades celebrities' privacy has become a widespread topic. Therefore, it needs more consideration.

Almost every day the internet and the mass media are visited by famous people's fans. With only few clicks fans can find out about celebrities' lives. But how ~~many much~~ of ~~these this~~ news should be allowed to be published. Shouldn't ~~there~~ be a limitation on information ~~leakage transpire~~. Of course celebrities suffer from lack of privacy and paparazzi's omnipresence. Even sometimes a mad fan can cause a serious problem and harass celebrities and their families by knowing about ~~famous their people's personal secret~~ life. Even though they have become more famous by being on the top of the news, ~~however~~ it doesn't mean they want to be in the news limelight about their secret information.

Moreover, they have chosen to live in the public spotlight. They have ~~somea~~ knowledge about ~~the a~~ situation they are going through. They are aware of unstable privacy and security and having no secret in their lives and they have accepted to live in this way. On the other hand, celebrities should respect their fans' curiosity and share some news about their lives and works.

At the end, all people in every condition have a right to live freely and have privacy and secrets of their own. It is true that celebrities ~~make lead~~ a good life out of media attention but their privacy should not be violated, although they should be convinced of difficulties and problems of this career. In other words, they can aid ~~in to~~ preventing the ~~aspects margins~~ of their life by learning to act like a professional and reduce unexpected behaviors.
