

While more and more people read news on the internet, newspaper will remain the most important source of news. Do u agree or disagree?

Although reading news on the internet is getting more and more common among people, some say that newspapers are is still the most important and reliable source of news access, which I think is not true.

digital sources of news have a couple of advantages in comparison with the traditional ones. for example, reading news on the internet allows u to be aware of things happening right in the moment, while newspapers are only capable of covering news occurred occurring before they are published. Also having access to the internet is much more easier than newspapers and can save a great deal of time for us to do other activities such as working or entertainment. digital sources of news allows us to get informed of news in a certain field which we prefer, while newspapers cover a variety of news fields that most of which them seem to be unimportant for us and even paying attention to them can waste a considerable amount of time. Newspapers usually include some irrelevant columns, such as advertisements, which we might not want to read and thiswhich can make individuals feel uncomfortable. So even in this case, reading news on the internet is much more convenient. Another reason that makes digital news sources more beneficial is that the process of publishing newspapers has a harmful impact on the environment because of the trees which are cut in order to provide papers. Although this might not to be a major concern now, but people cannot ignore the negative impact of these in future.

In conclusion, while newspapers can be beneficial ~~for~~to some extent, It seems that reading online news via the internet is much more advantageous.
