ANSWER:

Celebrities usually have a different life style from ordinary people. More ups and downs are experienced by them in comparison to other members of ~~the~~ society. They enjoy ~~of~~ the benefits of being well-known, while tolerating its side effects.

*On the one hand, a famous film star, as an example of a celebrity, comes across lots of limitations during the life time and ~~can not~~cannot easily live his normal life, since he is under surveillance by numerous people, including fans and others. Simply, getting relaxed under the sunlight on a beach could create a big problem for them, as his photo might be taken and distributed in social media. Bad reputation is the consequence of small actions done by a super star, even though the same behavior is entirely considered normal, if they are performed by others. It could be stated that famousness/fame can sometimes create problematic situations for those who exploit it.

*On the other hand, popularity has its own benefits for celebrities. First and foremost, is the huge amount of money they can make. Rarely may you ~~, you may~~ find an icon who is not in a proper economical situation. Affluence and luxurious styles~~,~~ are ~~is~~ usually a property of their lives. Thanks to their fame, they become privileged in ~~the~~ society and do not need to follow all necessary steps to achieving their goals. In my opinion~~e~~, the benefits of being a celebrity can definitely outweigh its problems.

*As a conclusion, it could be said that there are both drawbacks and upsides of being well-known, but when the two sides of the coin are precisely analyzed, it shows that the advantages of being an icon is much more than its downsides.