Some people believe that allowing children to make their own choices on everyday matters (such as food, clothes, and entertainment) is likely to result in a society of individuals who only think about their own wishes. Other people believe that it is important for children to make decision about matter that affect them.

Discuss both these views and give your own opinion

Raising children is one of the most important issues for parents and widely society. Such a trend creates a variety of opinions in this regard. Some believe that letting children ~~to~~ contribute in daily task choices has many beneficial impacts on their future. Also, others may have a strong counter-argument against this view. They might think this issue is prone to cause selfish attitudes in society.

Giving opportunities for contributing in routine decisions is a testament to self-confidence in immature children. For example, when parents ask about children's opinion in simple activities such as choosing the color of clothes or food it may cause a feeling of respect and importance from their parents. Also, the ability of making choices is not only ~~is~~ a practice for future decisions, but also ~~it is a~~ symptomatic of creativity and self-centered manners. Choosing a major or collage can be a textbook example in this regard.

On the other hand, decision making in early ages also ~~have~~ has negative effects on children's future. Allowing children to make their own choices, parents would lead the immature to create a detrimental problem, hence their failure in their lives. For instance, depression and seclusion might be a result of choosing an improper job. However, I opine that parents should give permission to the children to make their own decision under their circumstances.

In conclusion, giving admission to a child may have a significant impact on his life in many aspects. Both negative and positive effects are results of these different opinions, but from my point of view the advantages ~~are~~ outweigh~~ed by~~ the disadvantages.
