

Being a celebrity – such as famous film star or sports personality- brings problems as well as benefits.

Do you think that being a celebrity brings more benefits or more problems?

To be a celebrity has been definitely a dream of many people in the world especially at some specific teen ages. But the question that one would ask is ~~that~~ whether the benefits of being famous and popular outweigh its negative sides? I am more of this belief that being well known can entail many positive results consequences if ~~it is~~ directed correctly.

Firstly, in my opinion, what makes being popular ~~too~~ much too appealing is the power which comes along with the popularity. When someone is praised by several people, it means that a multitude of people are following him or her and consider him/her a role model. Thus, a celebrity has this power to make something a trend or even a movement in society. A clear example of this phenomenon can be found in numerous employmentuses of super~~star~~ stars in advertisements and commercial campaigns. Using this method, companies attract millions of customers who are fanss of the artist. Moreover, it is undeniable that money always accompanies ~~the~~ fame in that most of the famous people are making good money out of their popularity. Therefore, richness is another positive result of being famous for sure. To illustrate, most of the celebrities live in mansions with all the entertaining facilities and drive super luxury cars.

On the other sidehand, many point out that not everyone ~~does-has have~~ the capacity of being famous. It is very important for a celebrity to develop his or her morale capacity to be able to control the potential arrogance which might come in its wake. Another negative point that can be mentioned about reputation is the loss of privacy. Celebrities are always chased by the press; they always must be careful about their activities and behaviors as they are always under the limelight and constantly subject to the community curiosity, so ~~-So~~, sometimes it takes a toll on their private life as they cannot appear with their beloved ones in the public easily.

In conclusion, I think reputation can be a blessing if it is oriented around good deeds like activities that support preserving the environments or collecting money for charities but ~~and~~ can be very extremely destructive if not enough attention is paid to contain the probable arrogance.