

Some people feel that the legal age at which people can marry should be at least 21. To what extent do you agree or disagree?

Many opine that marriage should have a minimum age. Although they think 21 ~~years-old~~ is a proper age, I believe other than age, everybody should know social skills so that they have a successful marriage.

In the past, because of a poorly ~~designed~~ situation, people usually got married at an early age, whereas most of them did not have a proper understanding of their duties and responsibilities. The further they go, the further they know that they make a mistake either in their choice or in their way of life. Ultimately, it causes emotional crises for family members. On the other hand, that financial problems are the root of many family problems is indisputable. People ~~in-at~~ their young age usually cannot manage their lives money-wise. Simply put, due to the fact that most of them are studying, they do not have a good job, or they find a job with meager income finally.

Needless to say that marriage is a complex process. In other words, not only should you accept your differences with ~~your spouse~~ ~~the law~~, but also you have to adapt yourself to the new situation. Besides, you can enjoy them and also ~~this it~~ is not provided unless you have a high emotional intelligence (EQ) and I should mention that it is irrelevant to the educational level of the people.

In a nutshell, age is an important criterion but it is not decisive. In this rapidly changing world, other factors are on the rise such as social life skills and it is incumbent on us as a father or mother to know our children with them.
