

Most societies have ~~its~~ their homeless people. Some people think that the best way to help them is to give them money. To what extent do you agree?

Homelessness is one of the biggest problems in every society. A group of people believe that giving money to those with such a problem ~~them~~ directly is one of the solutions, but I opine, it could be a temporary solution and governments should help them indirectly.

First of all, ~~if the government gives them money to help them~~ such an approach will lead to, those who try to collect some money to buy a house lose ing their motivation and stop trying to make their ends meet. Incentivizing ing their intention to be a homeless hobo, monetary aids ~~helps~~ resulted in misusing the facilities and thinking homelessness is the easiest way to have a house, so the government should encourage them to have a house with their own income.

For encouraging people not only, should the government ~~should~~ work on educational aspects but also jobs need to be considered. Providing free access to educational institutions, the administration ~~ought to~~ can develop job opportunities to bring about constant a stable income for ~~the~~ those on the streets.

Secondly, authorities can give these homeless people a community shelter for a short period of time, and give them time to raise money to have their own houses.

In conclusion, having a house is one of the five fundamental needs of humans and governments play a big role ~~to help in~~ helping decrease the rate of homelessness ~~decrease~~ and increase ~~the level~~ that of life satisfaction in their countries.
