

Some people say that artists such as painters, writers and musicians affect our life more than scientists. To what extent do you agree or disagree? Give reasons for your answer and include relevant examples from your experience.

The Importance of science and art on human life, especially over the last two centuries, is an undeniable fact. There are many people who hold the idea that science has less influence on our life than ~~that of~~ the artistic works. This essay deals with arguments for and against this controversial issue.

Those who are in favor of art believe that it has been artistic works which have changed our boring life into a less disappointed/vibrant one, especially after the industrial revolution. Art is a way of expressing our feelings such as fears, sadness, happiness and objections. Only by art is an individual capable ~~to of~~ complaining about unfairness in societies, and express his wishes to others in a socially acceptable way. That protest singers, song writers and authors played a significant role in putting an end ~~on to~~ (the scourge / flames / shadows) of war during the Cold War is indisputable. This is the most impressive argument among the supporters of artists.

The supporters of science argue that it was the outcome of scientists that saved primitive men's life from life-threatening dangers leading them from caves to the modern luxurious lifestyles. The supporters of scientists often point out that the human race owes to the fruits of scientists. Many a facility we are enjoying these days ~~are is~~ outstanding examples of scientists' endeavor. Advanced means of transportation are moving us around the globe, findings in medicine medical have resulted in a decrease in the rate of infant fatality, and humans' average life span ~~have has~~ increased which are some notable examples of how science impacted our lives. We are now extracting invaluable minerals from the depth of the earth to be used in different ways, making our life much easier compared to the past/ than that of our ancestors. These achievements are not at least a direct result of arts.

In conclusion, considering the impact of science or arts as the primary factor of improvement in human life has become a matter of intense debate. While some strongly advocate the arts, others argue that the focus should be on the influence of science. This essay elaborated on both views with some relevant experiences.