

Countries are becoming more and more similar because people are able to buy the same products anywhere in the world.

Do you think this is a positive or negative development?

Nowadays, sale strategies of different companies all over the world are the same, which leads to increasing similarity of the people's life in the countries and they purchase similar products while they are living far from each other spatially/physically/distance-wise. I strongly believe that this similarity in buying goods causes ~~to~~ better understanding and developing a standard which will resemble ~~the~~ people's life in ~~the~~ various countries. This essay will discuss the positive impacts of ~~the~~ buying the same products in different countries.

Firstly, growth of the world's people communication causes people to buying similar products, and they have better relation ~~with~~ together, although they are in different countries. Big companies' strategy for producing a special thing has been changed recently. They are thinking about the amount of ~~the~~ products which will be sold in the other countries. In this way, countries need to make more connections ~~with~~ together and they should increase common benefits. For example, some of the companies like Apple and Google have facilitated using their products for countries all over the world's countries. ~~This~~ these known companies are pioneers for easier understanding of ~~the~~ countries from each other. ~~In~~ as a result, if the people of the different countries be ~~are~~ able to buy goods in the same way, they will have more relations which causes ~~to~~ better mutual understanding and interaction.

Secondly, one of the most important reasons of the living in the same way in different countries is the similarity of the purchasing and buying the same products. If the people of the world live in the same way, they will be closer culturally. Friendly relation among the people of the different countries leads to a worldwide union. For instance, after that the European countries decided to make ~~establish~~ the European Union, most of the people of these countries are ~~were~~ more satisfied. They can easily sell and buy the products of the European Union and they find a lot of common styles. So, utilizing ~~with~~ the aid of technological developments ~~development of the technology~~ for having Constructive commercial relationships, the life of the people of the world is more and more similar which leads to more friendly relations among the various people in the world.

Of course, I think becoming more and more similar because of ~~the~~ buying same goods in the world have ~~has~~ also some negative effects like missing some original cultures and traditions but there is some way for preventing these problems. The countries should do their best to develop positive effects of ~~the~~ buying the same products utilizing the people of the different countries, while do ~~not~~ eliminatin ~~ge~~ their culture and tradition.

In conclusion, buying the same goods is popular among the people of the world. This essay discussed the positive outcomes of the buying the same products in the world. Based on this essay, we can say, although there are some negative effects for buying the same products in the world and increasing the similarity of the countries, but the advantages of that is more.
