

Nowadays the way many people interact with each other has changed because of technology. In what ways has technology affected the types of relationships people make? Has this become a positive or negative development?

These days, communication between people has a different manner. It is considered by many that thanks to technology new opportunities have been engendered in favor of correlation between individuals, while it is commonly believed by others that new types of humans' relationships have changed into a destroyable one. In-from my perspective, both the pros and cons of this subject should be considered and it is our choice whether to face it as an unfavorable a-gross issue or a blessededing opportunity.

To begin with, drawbacks of technology affectinged-relationships have their vital influences, that is to say as a in-the result of technology usage there are more superficial communications between people. Moreover, technologies like the internet lead people to conceal their true identity far easier than before. Hence, the less-fewer face to face connections, the more dishonesty among people's interactions; this is why the elders have always insisted on the crucial influence of working relationships by making eye contacts with others. Therefore, as time goes by humankind has-becomes a less sociable creature.

However, an important consideration is that technology is a suitable way for socializing with one another through this much-busy life almost all of us have, so it-iswe are better off appreciating the existence of technology due to the time decadence-shortage. I also argue the other positive aspect of technology's improvement that-is making new friends throughout-all over the world regardless of distance, policy and other factors. So, not only does technology assist in making new relationships, but also it helps us to be-staystayed in touch with our loved ones and old friends far from us.

In conclusion, some people link technology to a ruining factor of our relationships, while others think it lies in making better opportunities for human interactions. I by-myself believe that such opportunity is somewhat a kind-of blessing in the period we are living in, and it-we had betteris better-off focusing on its benefits rather than the negative effects.
