

In the past, when students did a university degree, they tended to study in their own country. Nowadays, they have more opportunity to study abroad. What are the advantages and disadvantages of this development?

In the past students had less interest to continue their education in foreign countries. Nowadays the new generation tends to study in other countries more than before, so they as well as society may face many advantages and disadvantages by this action.

From my point of view, good points of studying abroad are much more than it's-its drawbacks. As we know, one of the most important achievements of 21st century is the internet and international media broadcast. Because of them, knowledge and information have improved a lot and for students's access to information is just quite effortless/a piece of cake. The breadth of information leads them to know new majors, experts and also worldwide well-known universities which present them. Studying in these universities may help them to learn remarkable items-materials and concepts that may not be able to learn in their hometown, such as modern methods, technology, culture, society, politics and so on.

However, there is an important disadvantage of this attraction, which is the knowledge that encourages the youth to leave their country for good. They may feel more accommodation in the new area and refuse to return and serve their own society. In this situation a country loses-loses it's-its best knowledgeable and potential experts and all the benefits they bring by performing duties to their own country.

In conclusion, besides all good and bad points, brain drain happens especially in third world countries. As far as I am concerned, the only solution for this social crisis can be that governments enhance their educational platform and environment in order to make their country more desirable for adolescents, so perhaps they would prevent their best potential students to-leavefrom leaving and be able to upgrade the worldwide educational ranking among the rest of the world.
