

In many countries these days the number of people continuing their education after school has increased and the range of courses available at universities and colleges has also increased.

Do you think this is a positive or negative development?

Economic and social ~~inspections~~ scrutiny of the public behavior ~~have has been~~ revealed the existence of the emerging trend of request for the higher degrees of ~~the~~ education by under graduate ~~students~~ guys, followed by more ~~educating~~ educational courses which are prepared from universities' sides. This essay is going to discuss the cons and pros of this issue in more details.

At the very first point, it looks like that the whole world is experiencing technological developments, introduced by the graduates of these universities. For instance, Nano technology applications, solar energy harnessing, modern infrastructures, new types of architectures, innovations in medical science and health care and lots of other flourishing research-based developments that could improve the quality of lives of not only their owners but also the whole people in general. It should be mentioned that this is definitely ~~in-on~~ the contrary with the industrial duration in previous century. For instance in 1930 the automotive industry needed ~~more-larger~~ numbers of workers just to manufacture ~~more-higher~~ amounts of products ~~rather than~~ compared to engineers to innovate new products, ~~while~~ in the current century this industry is looking for more innovations hence their need for more well-educated individuals ~~rather~~ than operators.

However, as a drawback, many of the graduates' expectations have been changed compared with those who could not enter ~~to~~ the universities. Changing in their attitude leads them to perceive as they have a distinguished position in society and consequently lets them anticipate more respect from people, causing a ~~disgusting~~ feeling of disgust in people against them, hence the social communication problems of such a graduate. This hesitation has been frequently uttered by many of those who ~~that~~ have had communications with ~~so-a~~ fresh ~~a~~ graduate.

In conclusion, it should be expressed that although the trend of the increase ~~of in~~ the educationals degrees seems to have some downsides, its benefit absolutely outweigh disadvantages so it is reasonable enough to encourage it more and just enjoy its outcomes.