

Living in big cities has more advantages dm living in small towns or countryside. Do you agree or disagree with the statement? Use specific reasons to support your answer.

Actually it depends on so many factors. Both living in countryside and big cities has it is own advantages and disadvantages and your choice depends on so many factors such as your age and personality.

In my opinion, living in big cities has more benefits because the public transfer like bus and subway which is so important for me, are more advanced in big cities than in small towns or your accessibility to the hospitals or shopping centers is much easier in big cities and you have so many job opportunities with better salaries and of course I really enjoy the downtown night life in big towns. I think big cities are kind of alive and make you feel alive!

But living in crowded cities has it is own challenges too, for example most of us are struggling with the air pollution which causes so many diseases and it has a direct impact in our life expectancy.

On the other hand, we have to work hard in big cities to cover our living expenses. As you know cost of living in the big cities is heavy and many people can't even afford a house and the bad news is the living cost is increasing day by day so you have to be a hard worker to endure difficulties of living in modern cities.

In conclusion, I reckon after you retired, the best choice is to move to the countryside and escape from the air pollution and enjoy the pure nature and peace of the countryside.
