

Compare and contrast your way of your life with that of your parents. Which way of life do you think would be more satisfying for the next generations?

Dealing with needs and resources, people shape their own life style through the ages, ditto parent and child. Therefore, it is all about this dialectic when we talk about differences of life and the satisfaction they could bring to us. In my opinion, we cannot choose either of these to options determenestically by the which I mean each has its own cons and pro.

Psychologically, it seems our parent lived a healthier know-life. Considering depression as a common mind problem of humankind, scientific evidences shows they had less stressful feeling than us. Apart from scientific discussion, we have always heard about this matter from elders personally. A friend 's father of mine told me about how people catch up with their children before emergence of mobile phone. When a child came late, parents did not feel like such a worried pessimist to dig the town sticking-seeking him or her. Take it as an example, there are many other abnormal characteristics which even-make us to-even define new branches of knowledge to recognize and develop treatments for them.

We as new ages-generation of course have renovated our own life in a way that could satisfy ourselves. Functionally, we have invented some new instruments which help us to live an easier life. This can go beyond of-material life and even expand our wisdom. Consider the possibility of transportation which makes an infinite world small for us so that we can take it as an advantage of experiencing the world easier. We can visit different people and get familiar with their culture which were oddly enough those days to the extend-extent that elders call them magicians s unable to comprehend them.

To put it shortin a nutshell, a simple concept like time can plays a double-edged-aged sword role for those who inherit our wisdom in a way that we can heart-hurt ourselves by the pressure of time shortage whereas we are trying to utilize our lifespan by doing every thing we can. In fact, elders respect time but as a subset concept of life. Totally as a matter of fact jueneres-juveniles should minimize the cost and maximize the benefits to realize their rossy-rosy, optimistic alternative of life style.
