Do you agree or disagree with capital punishment? Give your reasons

The way to punish and deal with perpetrators of capital crimes in today's societies has been very controversial. Some people agree with capital punishment, while others oppose it. Each group has its own reasons, but still it's a moot question. Personally, I cannot reject capital punishment completely, but I think it should be severely restricted.

Opponents of the death penalty have different arguments, including never ~~should take~~ taking this opportunity from others to be better people. They know ~~the~~ execution as a punishment against humanity in which the corrective aspect of the individual has not been taken into account. These disputes are often heard from communities that count on the role of each individual in the construction and development of society. Hence, the return of every offender is considered important to the community.

But supporters of capital punishment also have their own reasons. They argue that this punishment prevents or at least reduces the crime involved. It is also said that the absence of capital punishment leads to greater courage in committing crimes. Moreover, although the execution of the death sentence is not welcome, it can prevent the worst consequences. For example, if a person is killed by another, capital punishment prevents individual revenge, which otherwise, can ~~make turn~~ society into chaos.

To conclude, personally I believed that in the application of punishments, humanitarian principles must be considered and although capital punishment is not desirable, it cannot be completely ignored or removed. At the same time, this punishment must be very limited and strictly controlled.
