

Do you agree or disagree with the following statement ?

Smartphones and online social networks have destroyed communication between friends and family.

The role of online social networks and cellphones are widely and they can affect communications. Some persons claim that they destroy them but others maintain that they are precise for improving relations. Moreover, I will point out some reasons that explain why they are useful.

In one hand, some people maintain that internet has a lot of drawbacks that one of the crucial issues is creating gaps in relationships. Many a families and friends have cold relations because of smartphones. For instance, nowadays during the parties and even ceremonies individuals are using their mobiles and Internet. However, in the past people were talking each other during friendly sessions.

On the other hand, in my opinion there are many positive and valuable characteristics of internet which improve our family relations. For example, I know a mother that her son is living aboard, also she calling him by Skype and these video chats are enjoyable for her. In addition, she mentions that these talking are very economical for her.

Last but not least, in many situations internet have had vital role in having strong relations. First, in our relative Telegram groups are useful for being aware of each other and seeing our dears' pictures. Second, I have a close friend that she is far from me, as well as calling to her by cellphone is comfortable and easy for me. Actually, each times that I miss her I can talk to her easily. Otherwise, in the past persons wrote letters and sent them to their friends. Not only was it hard but also it had slow processes.

In conclusion, some individuals claim that Internet had negative influence in communications of relatives and friends but I strongly believe that not only had it perfect effects in our relations but also mobiles had important role for continuing relations.