

Nowadays families move to different countries for work. Some people think it has a negative effect on children, while others disagree.

Discuss both views and give your own opinion.

There is a growing trend nowadays which people leave their own country to acquire knowledge, skill, good job opportunities and much more besides. Although meeting their needs is beneficial for them, families may face some challenges, such as moral issues on children's behavior.

To commence with, that children could adapt themselves to new environment is the key factor in this situation and is undeniable. Moreover, teenagers are more successful than their siblings who young to get alien cultures. Therefore, most young children, even their parents, experience real culture shock. Other than that, children need to be supported to have a good upbringing, not only from their parents but also from their relatives, but with their immigration, they are deprived of it.

Having said that, from my point of view, children of a migrated family can be benefited from many ways. First and foremost, they can be familiar with a new language in their young age, thereby speaking and knowing it fluently like their mother tongue. As a result, if a company draw a comparison between a bilingual person and monolingual one, without doubt, the former will make a better choice. Last but not least, due to their challenges, from the beginning of the life, in making new friends and adjusting to living in strange environment and also other cultures, by overcoming these problems, the might have gained confidence and independence which certainly help them in their future when they enter in their adulthood.

In conclusion, were I to choose between the advantages and the drawbacks effects on children's life, I definitely opine that the merits outweigh the demerits.