

Today going to university has become a habit in people. People go to university to find better jobs or increase their knowledge or experience new situations. Some people choose this way to show themselves to others and become proud.

There are various reasons for going to university these days. Some people want to increase the knowledge boundaries through university but the country or college that has been chosen is important too. Other people choose this way to have academic life in future because they want to be a researcher or professor.

Finding a better job is another reason that universities attract the people. However, it doesn't guarantee this subject. Having a university degree is the other motivation that people are interested in studying at university. They only want to have several degrees from different universities and colleges to show themselves to others and be proud of them.

In my opinion, establishing connections is one of the main advantages of universities. You can extend your connection network in this situation and find new friends that will help you in future.

Immigration is one of the reasons that people are interested in continuing their education. By immigration, life condition will be changed considerably because of new people, places and experiences. However, people must notice that each way has its problems, so they should be ready to face with them and have solutions for that.

In conclusion, each person has his purpose to go university but this decision must be done wisely.
