

What famous place would you like to visit? Use details and reasons to explain your response.

If you would ask me this question many years ago I had a different idea, but now I will select Spain for travel. From my point of view, there are two main reasons that attract me to this perfect country. Firstly, its individuals are human. Secondly, their concerts are full of sensible.

First, disappointed with current manners and immoral habits, I have searched for a utopia society.

Actually, I found Spain a precise country where I tend to visit at least once during my life. On the one hand, Spanish people are kind together and try to have a perfect behavior. For instance, one of my teachers told us "when you are walking to streets in Spain you will see some excellent manners", he pointed out that he has seen an old woman who met a little girl with her mother and she started to talk with that kid and said some positive sentences like "where have you been little angel? Do you know how much the world become amazing after your birthday, your majesty? You are the most beautiful princess that I know." In addition, she made friend with her mother. On the other hand, I have a lot of German friends who are very logical and seem impartial about emotional factors, but one of whom is different. one day I asked her why you are happier and more kind than the other compatriots, then she said that she has lived in Spain for just 2 years.

Second, not only do Spanish individuals not care about annoying subjects, but also they dance and play music in their sad situations. Hence, they use music a lot for their happiness and their glad time, their melodies are professional. In other words, I would like them and I want participate in their native concerts, as well as visiting their popular singers. Moreover, I prefer to observe Spain because of its language, too. It would be so wonderful to behave toward this nation, as well as relating to them.

By way of conclusion, I want to visit Spain because I believe that there is the position where its population has found their humanity and it will be a dreamy trip for me.
