

Every country has poor people and every country has different ways of dealing with the poor.

What are some of the reasons for world poverty? How can the poor be helped

Today, most if not all, nations throughout the globe are struggling with ~~the~~ world poverty. It is true to claim that all members of societies along with governments must shoulder the responsibility, thereby eradicating or ameliorating the ~~so-called~~ situation.

The stark reality of poverty stems from various phenomena including conflicts or political upheavals as well as natural disasters. Countries undertaking the former are more likely to be pushed into the poor communities in comparison with those of which haveing peace and stability. Struggling with prolonged conflicts, citizens' lives are scattered like leaves in the wind, since they might need to leave any belongings behind to survive. Syria, for example, is able to fully portray the lives of people ~~protracted-~~displaced/impoverished by war. In the realm of the latter drought or flood, for instance, would aggravate the condition of those whose mere source of income is through agriculture. Failing harvest after harvest might drain the farming population ~~of~~from money and assets. Ultimately, finding themselves eroded mentally and financially, ~~disaster-~~stricken ones backslide below the poverty line which is regrettably the dire story of some African countries.

Seeking out a way to annihilate or at least to lessen the load, governments must exert some promising measures which could range from exempting the poor from tax to paying monthly income. In other word, authorities must support them ~~to in~~ reinvigorate-reinvigorating and establishing a better life which all human beings deserve. However, expecting governments to intervene, does not debunk the notion of others' responsibility of donation, particularly those ~~who are having~~with sufficient salary.

Overall, communities ~~might~~ turn into poor ones due to various reasons, and in order to change for the better, not only is it governments' duty, but it is also any individual's s' responsibility to tackle the issue.