Some people believe that nowadays we have too many choices.
To what extent do you agree or disagree to this statement?

Obviously, it is easy to understand that nowadays people around the world have more option in every aspect of life. By development of technology and amenities there are several choices in every domain such as routine life, hobbies, travelling, education, medical care or even in the life style or people attitude. I think no sensible person will deny this irrefutable fact that nowadays we have too many choices.

First and foremost, you can find more life style because of the various intellectual systems. Today people are more aware of different ideologies and outlook of life, so they can think and select their own way.

Moreover, technology has provided facilities that were not previously available to humans. For example currently any part of the world is easily reachable, as a result people can visit more place, more people with more different culture an style. Not only by travelling can they see them closely, but also with the help of the internet, Human beings have intellectual, commercial, and cultural connections with each other. Hence, they are not limited with the measures in their city or even their country, they have a wide range of choices in all over the world.

From the above illustrations, it is certainly clear, that recently we have too many choices. This situation is a consequence of globalization. Every people can experience any situation he wants regardless of his place. For example these days you can taste international foods in many cities, or special food ~~suites~~ which suits ~~to~~ your diet or facilities for every Physical and mental disability.

In conclusion, I concur that we have a plethora of choices in today's world, and I am certainly sure that~~, that~~ the availability of options will keep on increasing in the near future.
