

Organized tours to remote community and other countries ~~is-are~~ increasingly popular.
Is it a positive or negative development for the local people and environment?

The past few years have witnessed the burgeoning growth of organized tours to secluded parts both domestic and international. My contention is that this phenomenon brings both beneficial and adverse outcomes ~~on-to~~ locals and environmental quality.

Tourist packages offers definite perks to local residents, they can enjoy the amelioration in living standards, more utilities, transportation infrastructures and many other beneficial impacts on indigenous lifestyle.

First and foremost is that increasing the longing for visiting the countryside and far-flung retreats has caused ~~exposing~~ serious threats if ~~it-such trips is-are~~ not organized well. ~~The~~ polluted water and littering are the result of increasing visits to remote areas. Secondly, the local wild life and vegetation are also vulnerable to destruction. The example substantiating this statement is, when travelers bribed the authorities to hunt wild animals. ~~the Aftermath aftermath~~ of which ~~was,has been~~ elephants and rhinoceros hunted down to extinction.

Furthermore, apart from this potential peril, intrusion in to/on local customs and traditions is a big concern and it can leads to ~~culture-cultural~~ extinction. The propensity to aping others can be a detrimental fact to religions of tribes and their beliefs. People can also imitate the way travelers use garments and consumer goods which will ~~make perish~~ the local customs perish.

To conclude, I would reiterate my decision that if tourist packages ~~was-were~~ not well organized it could be really harmful irrespective of the good points that they brings about with ~~itthem~~. To mitigate the adverse outcome of tourism new legislations should be passed by governments.
