

Nowadays weddings are becoming bigger and more expensive. Why is it happening? Is it a negative or a positive development?

A majority of people especially females ~~s ones~~ believe that a wedding ceremony is an unrepeatable event which sticks to everyone's memory forever. As a result, weddings are getting more ornate and cost an extortionate price. Having a grand ceremony provides the chance to gather together the extended family and all friends to celebrate this occasion, but a wedding with many guests is costly.

The tendency of people to have a fancy lifestyle is increasing compared to past and most of the people have a lifelong dream to have a glorious wedding like royal ones. With the emergence of social media people have more chance to self-expression, they share their experiences especially the luxurious ones with others all over the world. Media plays an important role in propelling people to be more materialistic and desire fancy ~~stuffsgoods~~. For example a wedding planner company broadcasts a breathtaking advertising clip from a wedding to tempt people to have one.

Holding a luxury wedding puts ~~s/exerts an~~ unnecessary pressure on people. Financial ability has a determinant role in the quality of wedding parties in that lavish ceremonies require an excessive amount of money. Normally people get ~~ting~~ married when they are young, having tight budget ~~from-on~~ their own. Hence, they have to borrow money and start their new stage of life in debt. In addition, holding a big party requires a lot of energy to plan and manage activities.

In conclusion, although joining in matrimony with a beloved partner is one of the most important milestones for every human being and it is valuable to turn it to a magnificent memory, there is no need to hold a lavish party including many guests. It should be a celebration of love not an opportunity to show off one's wealth.
