

Nowadays many families believe small families are far better than large families. Do you agree or disagree?

Nowadays a current issue among the government is about size of the families. While some people assert that the larger the better, Other oppose that view and agree that smaller families have a lot of plus points. Conspicuously, in this essay I will discuss both views and then I will give my own idea.

People who passionately endorse the first view claim that small family can have a suitable standard of life and they are in a relatively more welfare. They are trying to say that small families have less stress associated with economical issue. Hence, they can afford their money on well education and luxury trips. For instance, I have one cousin who has not any sibling. She is multi-talented and she has played piano since she was 6 years old. Not only does she speak 5 languages but also she can plays couple of instruments. Because she is being taught by some private tutors.

As well as this, authority figure state that role of parents is the most significant part of off-springs' personalities in the beginning of six years of their life. Ergo, having a small family leads to best caring, maximum attention and more companionship. Likewise, parents have more leisure time for themselves and they can easily adjust to all conditions they can put on energy and concentration more on their children as well as themselves.

At the same time, I suppose it is quite probable that we may have more squabble and chaos in large families. For example, I have an uncle who has 6 off springs, his children have to share their staffs and rooms together and it leads to quarrel and conflict among them.

However, in my estimation it can have some plus point in living with large families. They don't feel loneliness and they can be in company together also they become more independent and responsible.

In brief, I am of the opinion that a small family is quit better. A disinterested advice to heel is that before raisingexpanding a family we must consider expenditure and welfare. So here is my question. Are you ready to be in a large family or not?
