Being a celebrity-such as a famous film star or sport personality brings problems as well as benefits. Do you think that being a celebrity brings more benefits or more problems?

Many individuals around world live with a lifelong dream to be famous. Hence being known by a majority of people, celebrities encounter some issues such as lack of security and constant monitoring of their life. It is a controversial question as to whether the pros of being famous outweigh the cons or not.

Famous people mostly have higher salaries and it is an undeniable fact that by being popular people ensure their ~~vocation~~career. With the emergence of social media everyone has a voice to influence ~~on~~ public opinion. Since celebrities are in the center of ~~concentration~~attention, they have the ability to play an important role in raising people's awareness by mentioning social problems and humanitarian opinions.

Despite all the benefits, being in the center of attention is a double-edged sword. First of all it influences private life. Famous people are mostly surrounded by fans and journalists who want to take pictures and reveal their life secrets. Many celebrities declare they suffer from lack of privacy in their life, for example queen Diana died in a car accident because the journalists were pursuing her. Second, stars become addicted to be popular and it makes/render them vulnerable to the personal evaluations of other people. With the cut-throat competition between celebrities, a majority of them become obsessed with their looks, rarely can we find a celebrity without severity dietary pattern and plastic surgeries.

In conclusion, although being appreciated by others is tempting and brings advantages to individuals, it is an enormously stressful profession which has some irreversible effects on their life.
