

Some people think that residents must take responsibility for cleaning and tidying up of their neighborhood. Others believe that the government should take care of it. Discuss and include your own opinion.

A Clean and immaculate environment is the right of citizens. Everybody should live in the area ~~which-~~ ~~its~~ whose microbes and ~~bacterizes~~ bacteria could not threaten their health. But ~~the~~ an important question has been raised here ~~that~~ which is who is responsible to clean the surface of the cities, Citizens or the government?

The State shall provide facilities for removing rubbish and garbage, and cleaning the streets and alleys. It is the government's responsibility to organize a system for effacing garbage. But the meaning of the above sentences is not that citizens are not in charge. Based on political philosophers' viewpoint, ordinary people and the government have a reciprocal duty. Therefore, the inhabitants of a district shall be aware of their responsibility/burden.

I am inclined to think that when someone utters that the government is responsible to remove garbage from city, she ~~must~~ shall be aware of her responsibility too. This notation follows one question, what are the citizens' burgher's responsibilities? I can name some of them: they should pay their tax, put their trash in particular places and separate their wet and dry garbage. Also individuals shall avoid ~~to~~ spreading litter.

But how could the government arouses people to do their duties? I think they could put some rewards i.e. paying lesser tax, free using of the public transporting system and ~~so~~ another measures. Also the State shall enact some penalties for anybody who does not do her duties. On the other hand, citizens could monitor the way of disposal of waste and if they don't satisfy/comply/cooperate then Administration shall change and modify the waste handling system.

At the end, ~~I want to express that~~ not only is municipality responsible to clean off the city but also people should consider their duties. Insofar as we are not aware of our responsibilities, society could not be developed.
