

Do you agree or disagree: people would meet many problems in their daily life and they would solve them by themselves or from the help of their families; the help from the government is not necessary.

Problems are undergoing change day by day. Due to developments, the approaches people take to resolve their issues have improved. Governments were a prime candidate who were responsible for all problems in the past, but this has changed through time. In the following paragraphs, I will elaborate on why we should not expect the government to help people invariably.

First, the private sector has developed through time and taken on some responsibilities. Many people believe that efficiency of the private sector is much more than the government because the citizen sector works more focused and is more able to investigate the responsibility which has assumed, so its productivity and creativity are further more than governments. Furthermore, its duties are much less than those of the state, as a result, it can make the best use of its potential and facilities to do its duties professionally. Therefore, people can be assisted in their daily problems by the citizen sector. In that case, the difference between the private sector and the public sector is that the former works deeply and the latter performs widely.

Second, some experts explain that receiving help from the government means /translates dependence which itswhose result is holding people back. In fact, had-were the government been in charge of everything, it would have monopolized d all resources and economy. Consequently, the competition would be reduced d and people would be deprived of quality services. For example, some online taxi companies which are private have-were established in Iran six years ago which have had a key role in the betterment of public transportation.

To conclude, I opine that governments have a more prominent roles s which the private sector does not have enough power to play them, thus, the public sector should not get caught up with problems which can be solved by the other sector. They can impose the laws s facilitating competition for the citizen sectors s to aid it with minor problems and prevent them from breaking the rules. In fact, the public sector should introduce the laws s which is-are in favor of consumers, oversees s the firms' performance, and leads s to fair competition. Finally, it can give companies a loans s to set up their business. In that case, the public sector should provide financial help, ask the organizations for financial reports, and not get involved in the implementation phases.
