

Some people feel that legal age at which people can marry should be at least 21. To what extent do you agree or disagree?

The marriage has been a significantly important part of the human life which has always been a controversial and critical matter for people. Although all countries have some political and religious rules for it, some people have their own belief and tribal rituals. I, personally, believe that no matter what the countries' rules say, the essence of humanity is more important than that. There is a fact that the lawful age for matrimony differs in various countries.

Some who claim that adults can marry after the age of twenty have their reasons. It is obvious that the marriage procedure not only should be considered in terms of physical maturity of individuals, but also it can require mental maturity. Furthermore, having offspring is the other aspect of the coupling and it also requires physically, ~~monetary~~ monetarily and emotionally ~~supports-supporting~~ entirely which parents should precisely pay attention to it. However, the age is only a number which cannot determine the mind growth and different abilities of individuals. In fact, there is a need to regulate exactly a minimum limitation for it.

In some countries, according to some religious aspects, the minimum age for girls to marry is under 10 years and it is unacceptable in terms of human right. Sadly, they will not have enough time to have their pleasurable childhood and will have to take enormous responsibilities to tackle which is a depressive situation. Besides, they struggle with their study, so marriage will burden a lot of pressure on them. Moreover, in some indigent countries and family to be exact, child marriage especially for girls is an inevitable situation, because in that way, they can lessen their family expenditures and perhaps with a new ~~arrival-membercomer~~ can easily cope with their personal family issues.

In conclusion, it is crystal clear that all regulations s should be introduced in favor of human beings without discrimination between both genders, but, regrettably, now, there is some customs which break the law of humanity. Surly, introducing an appropriate lawful age for matrimony brings about a bright future for the whole ~~of the~~ world.
