

It is better for children to grow up in the countryside than in a big city. Do you agree or disagree? Use specific reasons and examples to develop your essay.

Although amongst all the components resulting in a good life, the place can be sited in top ones, there are no exact indicators to illustrate where ~~is~~ the best place ~~is~~; big cities or small ones. Had Kant 's family left their small hometown, we would not know him as we do now, ~~and~~ perhaps, ~~diversely conversely~~ for Van Gog if ~~he hadn't would-not~~ left his small town for Paris. Seemingly, it all depends on what we expect from life and our conditions.

On the one hand, big cities offer their citizens lots of facilities which can help them to pursue their goals. Personally, I like to provide my children with various opportunities in these types of cities like ~~that those~~ of ~~educating education~~ or even matured health care systems. Maybe, there is not an elephantine gap between schools here and there but disturbingly, I can imagine the repetitive picture of waiting clients ~~came-coming~~ from ~~a-the~~ countryside in hospitals and clinics which no sooner had I entered ~~them~~-than I faced ~~them~~. Moreover, different sub-cultures coexisting in big cities together equipped people with a chance to get acquainted with others. My nephew, taking as an example, ~~is~~ experiencing a broad circle of friends presenting different dispositions in several grounds even in religion and mother language, hence his plural attitude and wide horizon to diversity in his childhood.

On the other hand, barely can our new constructions adorned with ~~splendent-shining~~ names like metropolises, suffocated by all identifiable sort of pollutions, suffering from hazardous tenses, humped ~~byed~~ an unbearably enormous population and rarely responsive to their needs, make a good choice for a child who needs a safe and sound atmosphere to grow. Enjoying the relaxed feeling of peace and tranquility, I can imagine my children with their friends playing in the front garden of my house in a small town unlike the inharmonic spirit of those big cities at least in their CBDs.

To make a long story short, I personally would not restrict myself to these choices and ~~would~~ rather ~~to~~-bridge these two, by which I mean the surrounding areas of big cities would be rational choices which not only provide my children with a range of desirable and of course necessitous facilities but also do not jeopardize the zesty lifestyle which I thirst for ~~my young charges-them~~.
