

Undeniably, most of the people have experienced such complicated situations, in which they should have make a decision either to remain on a detrimental position or fight to achieve a better one. Sometimes it seems quite difficult to choose what to do. This essay will discuss both aspect of each decision.

There are many people, who believe we should obey from what happens in our lives, even if it does not match with our perfect ideals; for instance, when a person is short of money because having a low-salary job it is not ideal for him to be always obsessed with buying a luxury car. Those people argue that, the only consequence of having such a mindset would be a stressful lifestyle and suffering. Instead, by accepting the current situation as a middle-class society member, he might suffer less, thereby he would moderate his needs based on his assets and not based on his expectations. In fact, they state accepting the reality would enhance your happiness.

On the other hand, there are many who says, it is human nature to always want a better situation and to proceed constantly, because the need for improvement is one of our basic needs, without which we could not be satisfied with our lives. Besides, only when we believed our actions can influence our environment, we get the confidence to try new things even if they were not always accomplished successfully. For example, making efforts for getting a higher position in a profession would change your current situation from a sedentary lifestyle to a more dynamic one because one plays a role in his-one's destiny.

In conclusion, I believe we must take our part to our development seriously. Although Constant effort and determination although sometimes may seem impossible in altering the situation, it is the only option we have to influence our own destination, so why we should not give it a chance? To put it simply, life is the matter of choice, in which everyone has a large proportion in his future.
