

In spite of the advances made in agriculture, many people around the world still go hungry.

Why is this the case?

What can be done about this problem?

Despite the enhancement of cultivation and agricultural improvements over the last century, hunger ~~is still~~ ~~remained~~ ~~remains as~~ a major problem which many people are encountered ~~with~~ worldwide; that is, there are millions of people who do not have enough food to eat. This essay will discuss the causes of such ~~a~~ problem as well as the respective solutions.

First, there is not the same possibility for all countries to have ~~good-conditioned~~ agriculture ~~with good conditions~~ due to their soil quality or lack of suitable weather for cultivating. For example, in some parts of Africa, ~~whose which are~~ mostly ~~parts are~~ covered with desert and poor soil, ~~plants there~~ are unlikely to grow ~~anything~~ compared to most parts of Europe. Therefore, this disparity in farming resources would affect the inequality of food distribution. Another ~~thing-reason~~ is, ~~the~~ economic ~~crisis-~~ ~~crises~~ which could result in the poverty of some people, mostly the worker class, could occasioned them severe hunger because ~~this-these~~ walks of society are more vulnerable to ~~lose-losing~~ their basic needs than the others.

A good solution for this problem would be to educate the public to manage their daily needs in order to reduce their ~~consumerism-consumerist~~ behaviors to be able to help the poorer class. Another option which is incumbent ~~to-on~~ the government, is to dedicate ~~subsidy-subsidies~~ for some basic foods like bread, rice, and meat only for people who receive ~~the~~ minimum ~~amount-of~~ wage to fulfill their initial demands. Exporting foods from rich countries to those places which have poor agriculture facilities is also a good action which provides support for other nations too.

Overall, food crisis does exist. therefore, ~~there-it~~ is everybody's responsibility to care about it ~~quicklyseriously~~. We should not lose sight of the fact that we could make radical changes in our surroundings only by small habitual changes like ~~using-properlyproper consumption~~ in order to amend this consumerist culture with simple steps that can be practiced from today because we, humans, need each other in order to make the world a better place to live and this practice would not be possible unless we cooperate together.

Duration:40 min